Newsletter of the Metuchen-Edison Historical Society

Summer 2015

Historic cemeteries in Edison and Metuchen have been the focus of much study and volunteer effort this past year. Boy and Girl Scouts, gravestone preservation groups, fans of parks and open space, and historical groups have all been involved. Why preserve or protect cemeteries? We do so not only because they are memorials to the past, but because their existence adds much to our understanding of our history, culture, and way of life. As stated by Mark Nonestied and Richard Veit in their New Jersey Cemeteries and Tombstones, History in the Landscape (Rivergate Books, 2008), there "is no better place to come face to face with the ideas and beliefs of New Jersey's first settlers than a burial ground. The names scratched into split field stones, or chiseled into brown sandstone and white sugar marble, remind us of early settlers – English, Dutch, Swedish, Scottish, African, and German – who made homes in a new land."

(Rivergate Books, 2008), there "is no better place to come face to face with the ideas and beliefs of New Jersey's first settlers than a burial ground. The names scratched into split field stones, or chiseled into brown sandstone and white sugar marble, remind us of early settlers – English, Dutch, Swedish, Scottish, African, and German – who made homes in a new land."

For decades, cemeteries have been a goldmine of information for genealogists, and graveyard preservation has often in turn been guided by those researching their family history. However, our historic cemeteries are also considered some of the best repositories of early American folk art. With the increasing ease of online genealogy research, art lovers and historians may become the new wave of guardians for these important places. Regardless of who takes on the mantle of stewardship, those efforts will benefit us all.

The Grimstead Correspondence, Part 1

By Andrew Kupersmit

With the Society's publication of the first ten years of Nannygoats, the author was reminded of a purchase made a few years ago regarding the Grimstead family. Like most things, finding the time to read the correspondence, research the names, dates and content, and then write an article about the correspondence is a major project. So, rather than being overwhelmed by writing about all of the items at once, some items will be presented here and others will be presented in future issues of Nannygoats.

In chronological order, the purchase consists of:

- Two envelopes with letters addressed to Mrs. Sidney A. Ford of Brooklyn, NY from the 1860s. Mrs. Ford was a relative of the Grimstead Family.*
- Three envelopes with letters from the 1850s and 1860s to Miss Mary A. Day of Brooklyn, NY (also a Grimstead relative).
- Five envelopes (four with letters) plus an extra letter, 1853-55, from Benicia, California written by James Grimstead (grandfather of Lloyd Grimstead).*
- Twenty-nine Grimstead Brothers Co. bank checks & promissory notes from 1869-72.
- One envelope sent from Schofield Barracks to Mrs. James Grimstead in 1927.*
- One used Ice Coupon book issued by H. D. Oliver for Mrs. Grimstead in 1933

*To be presented in a future issue of Nannygoats

The Letters to Mary A. Day

The letter presented here is written by Martha Grimstead to Mary A. Day in Brooklyn. It is dated March 11, 1865. It is mostly family news and events including a trip to Princeton and what I call "Adventures in the Metuchen Mud." It is a six-page letter, so only a portion will be presented here.

"...I don't expect to go anywhere again in some time – the roads are so terribly muddy. Mr. Edgar was going to a Sewing Society at the Manning's Wednesday in the rain, and came very near loosing [sic] his horse in the mud. He stepped through the quicksand and fell down. After three or four had worked over two hours, Ann the miller was sent for. Frank and Daniel, who soon had the poor animal in safely. Daniel gave him a little hay, and he was so anxious to get it that he forgot he was in the mud and with a little assistance, got up and walked off. They had taken him from the carriage and out of the mud before Frank got there, but he wouldn't get up, and they couldn't get him up, and they were in despair...

Grimstead Brothers & Co. Checks

Sixteen of the checks are from March 1870 and drawn on the First National Bank of New Jersey with the two-cent revenue stamp printed in the center and an ornate, vertical "Grimstead Brothers & Co." at the left. The other thirteen are promissory notes dated between December 1869 and January 6, 1872. Most of revenue stamps affixed at the left. These notes are basically past versions of postdated checks. They range from fifteen days to three months.

Piscatawaytown Burial Ground

In November 2014 the Metuchen-Edison Historical Society began a survey and study of the Piscatawaytown Burial Ground at St. James Church (2136 Woodbridge Avenue) in Edison. The cemetery was established in the 1690s and over the years there have been various surveys and records to document the graves, but none since 1978.

Using GPS technology, every grave existing in 2014 has now been recorded and mapped. In addition, the various lists of graves have been combined into one database that will be placed on the MEHS website and a record of Veteran burials has been created. This research project, conducted by Michael Gall with grant funding provided by the Middlesex County Cultural and Heritage Commission, has shed new light on who is buried there, the history of the burial ground, has provided new maps to find graves.

In May, the results of project were shared with the public at a program in St. James church, followed by a walking tour of the cemetery led by Walter R. Stochel, Jr. and Michael Gall.

Dr. & Mrs. Ainslie in attendance at the program on May 9, 2015.

The symbolism [the grave markers] employ – death's heads, hourglasses, cross-bones, and later cherubs or soul effigies and monograms – reflects the Puritan origins of so many of northern New Jersey's first settlers. Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Anglicans, and Baptists all employed similar gravemarkers. They tell us something of the attitudes of these people toward death and also highlight the incredible artisanship of local stone carvers, such as Ebenezer Price and Uzal Ward.

Grimstead Brothers Ice Company Coupon Book

H.D. Oliver is a Grimstead cousin named Henry D. Oliver. He was in the ice business with James and Frank Grimstead. Pencil notes inside the front cover indicate the coupon book belonged to Mrs. Grimstead in August 1933.

According to David Trumbull Marshall's book, Boyhood Days in Old Metuchen (reprints of which are available from the Historical Society), for "many years the Grimstead Brothers (James and Frank) and their cousin Henry were in the ice business. Ice was cut from the mill pond in Bonhamtown and stored in an ice house near the pond. All summer long, as long ago as I can remember, the Grimstead ice wagons went through Metuchen while Henry and Frank delivered ice." The 500 pounds of ice cost Mrs. Grimstead $300! Was this a nice family discount or full retail?

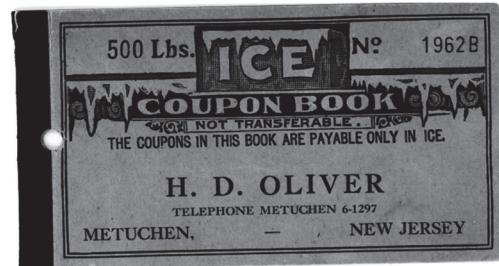

Old Colonial Cemetery

The cemetery on Main Street at the foot of Woodbridge Avenue in Metuchen has recently received much needed attention from Girl Scout Dominique Liantonio as part of her Silver Award project. In April she organized a cleanup, which John O'Brien from the NJ Chapter for the Association for Gravestone Studies attended, and during which he provided information about proper stone cleaning methods.

As follow-up, a day-long workshop was organized in July. Presented by Rob Myers, owner of Gravekeepers of Pennsylvania, the techniques taught to the 25 participants were in accordance with the National Center for Preservation Technology and Training (NCPTT) guidelines and "Best Practices." These standards were then put into use at the cemetery during hands-on training throughout the day. Several stones were cleaned, and many broken stones were repaired and up-righted, such as the LaForge stone shown below.

Metuchen's Councilman Muldoon attended the workshop in order to learn more about maintaining this important site (which is owned by the Borough; it was deeded over by the First Presbyterian Church in the 1970s). Since then he's taken steps towards having additional work done at the site, including shoring up the embankment along Main Street and tree trimming.

We are always looking for ways to share this wonderful site, and are working on a brief guide to the motifs found on the stones there, as well as a photo-inventory of the extant stones.

The Brainy Borough?

The Borough of Metuchen's Historic Preservation Committee recently completed an informational booklet about why Metuchen is called "The Brainy Borough," and free copies (while supplies last) will be available soon at the Metuchen Public Library and at Borough Hall.

With the assistance of grants from the Middlesex County Cultural and Heritage Commission, the committee has studied Metuchen's history and historic neighborhoods to evaluate the potential for one or more historic districts. These studies have resulted in additional historical information, especially related to the battle for the title of "the Brainy Borough." Research uncovered information previously unavailable in Metuchen.

The Society contributed greatly to the creation of the booklet by providing images and background information and we look forward to the booklet's distribution.

Middlesex County History Fair

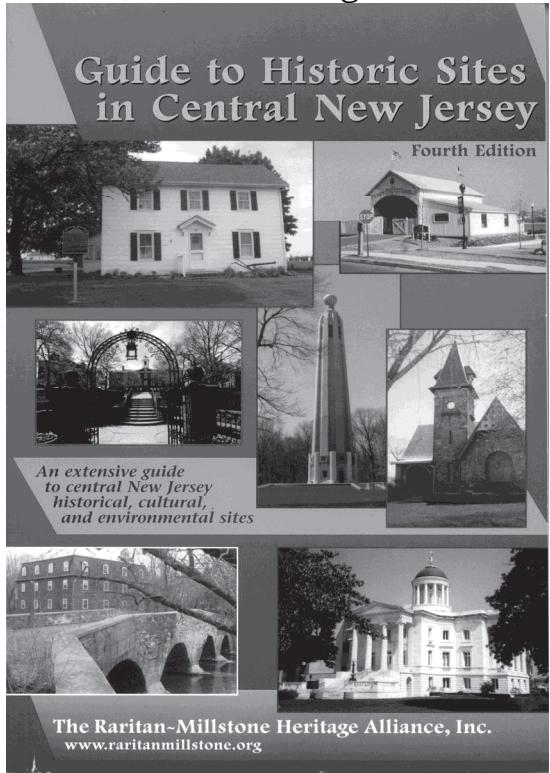

The Society was pleased to be able to participate in the first ever Middlesex County History Fair this past spring. Held at East Jersey Olde Towne on Sunday, May 31, the fair featured a wide range of history and preservation organizations from our area.

Happily situated next to our good friends at the Edison Memorial Tower Corporation, we greeted the many visitors with issues of our newsletters, copies of our walking tour, and information about the Battle of the Short Hills.

Raritan-Millstone Heritage Alliance

The Raritan-Millstone Heritage Alliance (RMHA) is a group of historic sites in Middlesex, Somerset, and Mercer counties, nestled along the Raritan and Millstone Rivers. These sites have a rich, eventful past and a promising future. The RMHA also includes adjacent corridors which support these sites. The mission of the Alliance is to promote preservation and understanding of the rich eventful and cultural heritage of significant historical, educational, and cultural sites located in this region.

One of the ways the RMHA does this is through its Guide To Historic Sites In Central New Jersey, available free online and in print. The guide is being updated and will include Metuchen sites in addition to the Edison Memorial Tower at Menlo Park (which has been included in the last few editions). The RMHA always welcomes new members, so consider joining today! More about the organization can be found at www.raritanmillstone.org.

METUCHEN AND HER HISTORY, 1870 (II)

The following is the second installment of a transcription of Dr. E.M. Hunt's "Metuchen and Her History," written in 1870, which we have begun reprinting serially in issues of Nannygoats. Many thanks to Society Vice President Dominic T. Walker for his work transcribing this document.

Among those for whom land was surveyed in Piscataway up to 1690, we find the familiar names of Bonham, Dunn, Dunham, Fitz-Randolph, Giles, Martin, Maning and Mundaye. Of these the Bonhams, Dunns, Dunhams, Martins and Manings were from New England. Luther Martin, the famous lawyer of Maryland, and one of the founders of Clio Hall, College of New Jersey, was of this ancestry.

Nicholas Bonham, from whom Bonhamtown has its name, died in 1683.

We are not to overlook another source from which a large immigration to our own immediate section was derived at an early period. In Scotland, and among Protestants and dissenters in Ireland, these were days that tried men's souls. Many were banished, or thought it wise to seek refuge in a land of larger liberty, and Amboy was at this period a prominent landing point.

We know that a Protestant company from Tipperary, in Ireland, settled in Piscataway in 1683. It is not possible to determine with exactness the particular party of immigrants to which each of the earlier names belonged. I think from circumstantial evidence that the names Mundaye, Payne, Kelly, Laing, Morris, Noe, Daniels, Freeman, Ross, Talmage, Foard and Thornal, were of this descent or of those who, impelled by similar motives, arrived with other bands of Scotch and Scotch-Irish refugees.

The name of Nicholas Mundaye appears as an owner of land in Piscataway in 1686, and one of the same name appears as a pewholder of the Presbyterian church here in 1794. This family probably lived on the Vineyard Road, not far from the New Brunswick Turnpike. Moses Martin, who died several years since at an age of past ninety, told me that the first of the Mundy name here was said to have come from the West Indies. If so, this would trace him as of those exported thither by the English Government for so-called treason in matters of religion, and in holding "conventicles." Scot, who chartered the "Henry and Francis," which arrived at Amboy in 1685, asked the transfer to him of a large number of persons who had been banished to Jamaica, and twelve were granted him, and others probably came before and afterward.

The name Martin occurs both in the colony which came from New Hampshire and also among the passengers of the "Henry and Francis." The name as occurring in Woodbridge was probably that of a settler from Amboy, while most of those in Piscataway are of the New Hampshire descent, John Martin being the first one named in the original grant. The farm, at present owned by Wm. H. Martin, on the Turnpike, and near the Vineyard Road, has been in possession of the family for about two hundred years. Before this the Parkers had settled in Woodbridge from Staten Island, and the Rowlands from Long Island. The farm quite near here, until recently sold, had been in possession of that family over two hundred years.

In a pamphlet published in Edinburgh in 1683, by the "Scots proprietors" having interests here, "for the information of such as may have a desire to transport themselves or their families hither", seven towns are mentioned as already established, namely, Shrewsbury, Middletown, Bergen, Newark, Elizabethtown, Woodbridge and Piscataway. They are declared to "well inhabited by a sober and industrious people, who have necessary provision for themselves and families, and for the comfortable entertainment of travelers and strangers."

Lord Neil Campbell, brother of the Earl of Argyle, and like him obnoxious to the English Government, was obliged to flee from Scotland and embarked for East Jersey, and landed at Perth Amboy about December, 1685. Many of the Campbells came about the same time or accompanied him, as is shown by a list of the passengers of the "Henry and Francis," and some settled in this neighborhood. John Campbell, son of Lord Neil Campbell, died at Amboy 1689, leaving two daughters and one son, named John Campbell, "of whose descendants," says Whitehead, "I have no knowledge." The oldest stone in the old graveyard here, so far as I know, is that of John Campbell, who died in 1733, aged seventy-two years. Next to his is the grave of Neil Campbell, who died in 1777, aged forty-three. The name here is of this stock and kin. The present Duke of Argyle, so eminent in statesmanship, in philosophy, and exemplary character, is of this lineage.

To be continued in the next issue.

Note: The Society published two issues in 2014 as a double issue; Volume 12, Issues 1 & 2. Generally the Society publishes three issues per year.

The name of the newsletter, "Nannygoats," is taken from the title of a collection of anecdotes, articles, reminiscences, and letters compiled by photographer J. Lloyd Grimstead. He took more than 2,800 photographs of the Metuchen-Edison area, mostly during the 1930s, which make up 80 percent of the Historical Society's photographic collection. The Metuchen-Edison Historical Society dedicates this publication to Lloyd Grimstead, as a way of honoring him for collecting and recording so much of our local history.
The Metuchen-Edison Historical Society is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization.

PFC Zederbaum Honored in Edison

On Memorial Day of this year, Oliver Avenue in Edison was dedicated to PFC Herman "Zeke" Zederbaum. Nannygoats subscribers may remember reading about Zederbaum and his experiences in World War II in the Fall 2008 edition (Volume 6, Issue 3). His son, Scott, contributed the article in 2008 and both he and his own son were on hand at the dedication ceremony in May and provided the following remembrance

My dad, Zeke Zederbaum, was born in the Bronx on May 7, 1921. When he was 18, he married my mother, Ida Lipschitz, and they had one daughter before he was drafted into the Army.

After the war, the Zederbaums had four more children and moved to the Fords section of Woodbridge, where Zeke began a career as a welder. He was badly injured in a fire at his workplace, Aula Chemicals, Inc. of Elizabeth, in March, 1954.

After a lengthy recovery, he went to a technical school to become a licensed electrician and contractor. He and his family moved to Oliver Avenue in Edison in 1964, and he started the Fix-It Electric Company in Edison.

He was also active as a past president for the Middlesex County Chapter of the NJ State Electrical Contractors Association, and served as a Leader for the Cub Scout Webelos, Pack 71.

He remained an Edison resident until his death at age 54 in June, 1975.

Many congratulations to the Zederbaum family on this wonderful honor.

"The Wreck of the Broker" Presented by Gordon Bond Sunday, November 8, 2015 Metuchen Public Library 2pm – FREE

On the drizzly evening of February 6, 1951, the Pennsylvania Railroad commuter train known as "The Broker" derailed in Woodbridge, New Jersey, killing 85 and injuring hundreds in what remains the deadliest railroad accident in the state's history and among the top five in the United States. What happened is reasonably well-understood. Why it happened, however, is an area of controversy that few (if any) histories have fully explored. Author Gordon Bond has been researching the wreck of The Broker for an upcoming book (due out tentatively in early 2017) and will be giving a summary of his research to date in this presentation.
