Winter/Spring 2008

Bygone Ballots

2008 is a major election year in New Jersey, so we went through our files and pulled out some memorabilia from our local voting history. From ballots to banners, pins to potholders, the Society has a wide range of electoral collectibles. Many of these items were on display in January at the Metuchen Public Library, and also at our annual Local History Day in February. Those interested in our political past should also look at the recently acquired Frankel Collection, which highlights Edison's elected history through news clippings and correspondence.

The Metuchen-Edison Historical Society was founded in 1974 with the primary purpose of promoting an interest in and appreciation of the history of the Borough of Metuchen and of Edison Township.

The Society regrettably announces that two of its valued members have recently passed away.

Audrey Drake Dana, 84, a long-time local resident and member of the Society, died Thursday, November 29, 2007, at JFK Medical Center in Edison. Mrs. Dana at one time lived at the 23-room estate known as "Roselawn" on Park Avenue, and donated many of her husband's photographs to the Society.

Elinor Blanche McCann, 81, died at her home in Yakima, Washington, on Sunday, December 16, 2007. Mrs. McCann was a past president of the Society and she and her husband Wayne were devoted members for many years before moving away to be closer to family members.

FALL 2007 PROGRAMS A SUCCESS

By Walter R. Stochel, Jr.

On October 28, 2007, Society members & their guests got a look at the newly donated Frey Sen Photograph Collection, dating from the 1940s through the 1960s. Using a power point projector, dozens of photos were shown, including many unidentified sites which members helped to identify. One unidentified photo of a hardware store resulted in a particularly spirited discussion with at least five different opinions of what store it was! The Society has archived three binders of the photographs from the collection, which will be available for viewing on Local History Day and during Grimstead Room hours.

As part of our efforts to learn more about the history of our community, the Society held a joint program at the Fugle Hummer Post 65 American Legion on November 4, 2007. Walter Zjawin of the Post talked about the history of the American Legion, the Fugle Hummer Post itself, and displayed some of their WWI and WWII rifles. The Post also donated their files from 1919 to the 1960s for the Society to copy and add to our collection. Did you know that the current Fugle Hummer Post was originally an annex to the Metuchen High School, and was moved to it's current location on Lake Avenue?

Society Seeking Qualified Staff Assistant

The Metuchen-Edison Historical Society is searching for an assistant to organize and manage the Society's Grimstead Room archives and collections. Responsibilities would include organizing materials in the archives, enhancing the existing information captured in the current database (e.g., expanding keywords), cataloging new materials in the electronic database, filing materials, and coordinating with the Metuchen Library regarding origin and ownership of items in the room. As part of managing the collections, this person would acknowledge donations and obtain releases wherever possible, enhance the database and assist with migrating to a more sophisticated system, create electronic files of photographs and other images, and scan (for use in later duplication) the current Grimstead Photographs. On an as-needed basis, this person would also assist with displays by creating new legends/captions for materials in the archives, assisting with the selection, preparation, and display of materials, and re-filing materials after use.

The position requires 8 hours per week (on a flexible schedule), with an hourly rate based on experience and skills. Excellent computer skills are required, and an interest in history and previous archives experience are a plus. For more information or to apply, please contact Walter Stochel at 732-906-0529 or via email at wstochel@earthlink.net.

New in the Collection...

Thanks are again due to former Metuchen resident William Molineux for his recent donation of photographs of Main Street and the old Borough Hall.

The nighttime images were taken at Christmas in 1948, and show off the town's festive holiday decorations.

Class of 1931 History

The following text is continued from the Class of 1931's History of Metuchen, which is being reprinted in Nannygoats serially (beginning with Volume 5, Issue 2, Summer 2007). Please note that there are known factual and grammatical errors, but the document is reproduced exactly as written.

PROMINENT PEOPLE

One of the most absorbing chapters in the story of Metuchen lies in the lives of the prominent people who have, at some time been connected with Metuchen. Some twenty-five or thirty individuals make up a group of versatile talented people whose work placed them in the spotlight. Seventeen of those have been listed in Who's Who. Some are prominent morely [sic], locally, others throughout the state, and several throughout the country. All have made names for themselves one way or another.

Probably one of the outstanding features of Metuchen has been the literary atmosphere that has crept in, and given the town some fine old traditions. In that respect it bears a good deal resemblance to the old New England villages which produced many brilliant writers throughout the course of American history. Metuchen has been represented by quite a number of writers and newspaper men, and from the work of these people has sprung the background that gives our town a strong flavor of literary culture. The very foundation of this background is an outstanding literary man of his time, Henry M. Alden, who for many years was editor of Harpers Magazine. In his capacity as editor he naturally came into contact with many writers and his magnetic personality drew them to Metuchen. He lived on Chestnut Avenue in the long, rambling red house near Plainfield Avenue where the Stevens brothers, artists, now reside. There he gave parties for the various members of the literary clan who dropped in on him from time to time. Much of Metuchen's literary background sprang from this.

The start of Henry Alden's career took place in 1863 when he became Managing Editor of Harpers Magazine. It did not take him long to become acclimated and soon his hospitality and fine personality made him prominent in literary circles and gradually he became one of a famous little literary group. Particularly associated with him both in his work, and socially, was William Dean Howells, famous American realist. Several distinctive collections of short stories were edited by these two men.

For fifty years Mr. Alden remained as editor of Harper's Magazine. During that time much of American Literature passed before him and he regarded with keenly interested eyes all youthful writers. His peculiar knack of developing unknowns was well known and that class of writers always found him a sympathetic aid in their troubles. Two of those whom he brought into prominence were Mary Wilkins Freeman, brilliant New England realist, and Owen Wister, American novelist.

Mr. Alden remained in comparative obscurity during many of his years as editor. Not until 1890 did he make any of his own contributions to literature. In that year he published "God in His World," which became very popular and which brought him much belated fame. Five years later he revealed his power in "A Study of Death," an essay of extraordinary depth. It dealt with the subject of mysticism and was closely connected with the subject of metaphysics in which he was deeply interested. Mr. Alden produced two other books but they never received as much attention as those other two.

Due to his friendliness and personality many people of literary prominence came to Metuchen to visit him at various times. Among those who were his guests on one occasion or another were Mark Twain, famous humorist whose books are classics, and whose name is a household word thorough the civilized world, William Dean Howells, probably the greatest of all American realistic writers, Owen Wister, popular American novelist of the present day, Princess Trumbetski, Mrs. William Lanthrop, Lafcadio Hearn, strange personality, who is noted for his works on Japan, and others.

Another famous guest of Henry Alden's was Miss Mary E. Wilkins of Randolph, Massachusetts, who came to visit him about thirty years ago. Miss Wilkins had been discovered by Henry Alden and for a number of years she had been writing stories about New England which had made her famous.

In Metuchen she met Dr. Charles Manning Freeman, whom she married on January 1, 1902. Her first home here was the residence now occupied by the Von Hartz family.

Mrs. Freeman brought her work with her. A few years after she had come to Metuchen she was one of two participants in a contest to decide the best author in America and England. Stories were written and published serially in a magazine. At the end of the contest a popular vote was taken among readers throughout the country and Mrs. Freeman's story won by a large majority.

Mrs. Freeman's manner of writing was a bit different from many of her contemporaries in that she rarely revised or rewrote anything, once finished. Rather she paid close attention to the construction as she went along, and spent much time in making each part fit smoothly into the whole.

Original campaign posters for George Silzer and Ed Edwards are shown here. Edwards was Governor of New Jersey prior to Silzer, then later ran for U.S. Senate on Silzer's Governor ticket, and both won. Silzer served as New Jersey's Governor from 1923 to 1926, and is shown in the oval photo above with his wife and adult son on the porch of their elegant Metuchen home at 79 Graham Avenue.

Some of the more creative campaign ephemera in our collections include a 1972 potholder, a 1974 poker chip promoting a casino gambling referendum, and a 1957 rotary phone dialer.

Subject matter was chiefly a product of her imagination as were her characters although on rare occasion she might use a person from real life. At one time great excitement was aroused in Metuchen when it was thought she had chosen some of her characters from Metuchen people. Her New England backgrounds were drawn from the memories of childhood.

Mrs. Freeman was a prolific writer of fiction and throughout her life she produced much work. Her stories, simple in style and plot, were realistic tales of New England folk. 1886 saw the start of her career, and in 1887 A Humble Romance made her widely known. The most important of her works include, A New England Nun and Other Stories, Pembroke, People of Our Neighborhood, By the Light of the Soul, Silence and Other Stories, The Jamesons, and The Portion of Labor. Besides these and numerous other novels and short stories she wrote poetry and one play.

Mrs. Freeman spent the last few years of life quietly, at her home on Lake Avenue. She died March 14, 1930.

Future issues of Nannygoats will continue reprinting the Class of 1931's History of Metuchen, including more from Prominent People, and several successive chapters.

The name of the newsletter, "Nannygoats," is taken from the title of a collection of anecdotes, articles, reminiscences, and letters compiled by photographer J. Lloyd Grimstead. He took more than 2,800 photographs of the Metuchen-Edison area, mostly during the 1930s, which make up 80 percent of the Historical Society's photographic collection. The Metuchen-Edison Historical Society dedicates this publication to Lloyd Grimstead, as a way of honoring him for collecting and recording so much of our local history.
